

Corn Plasters

It is the little things of life that are a constant worry—things so little and insignificant that we hardly consider them worth a thought. But the little grow to big ones and give us more vexation. So it is with corns. We feel them, but are too thoroughly interested with other matters to give them much thought until forced to do so.

It remained for the firm of Wasmuth & Co.

to prepare a remedy that would remove corns permanently. The result was

WASMUTH'S CORN PLASTER RINGS

(IN THE WATCH.)

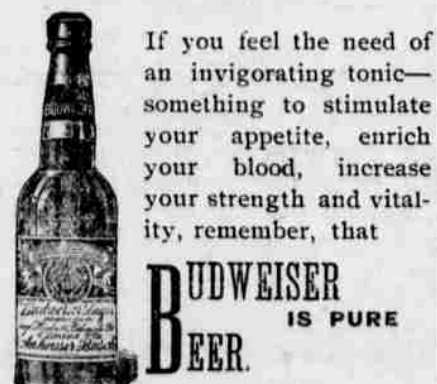

At the Franco-Columbia and International Exposition at Chicago in 1893 they were awarded a GOLD MEDAL. The simplicity of application of the plasters recommend them to all who are troubled with corns.

THREE DAYS' application is all that is required, and at the end of that time off comes the plaster and corn, leaving healthy, natural flesh.

Full particulars regarding the manner of using enclosed with each watch.

Sulphate of Ammonia.

Valuable testimonials to the efficiency of sulphate of ammonia as a manure for sugar land is contained in the official report on agricultural work carried on during the years of 1891-92 in the Botanical Gardens of British Guiana.

The results for the first year's test show that "where more than forty pounds of nitrogen per acre was applied, sulphate of ammonia gave distinctly the best results."

Prof. Maxwell,

under the head of "Mineral Nitrogen," says: "I consider the nitrogen in ammonia sulphate has a higher value per pound than nitrogen in any other form for the cane on these islands. . . . The examination of our soils has shown us that fertilizers must be applied; that cane prefers to take its nitrogen from ammonia sulphate."

JUST A FEW FLAPJACKS.

They Broke Up a Home and Showed a Woman's Heartlessness.

"I don't much care what it is," he was saying to the boss of the section hands on the railway. "Any-thing, 's long's it's work. As for pay, all I want is enough to buy me vittles and a place to bunk indoors if it rains."

"I might get you a job 10 or 12 miles up the road," mused the boss.

"I ain't got the slightest objection to travel, in fact, I rather like the idea of getting a long ways from home. How many hours a day will they let me work?"

"I'm afraid you will have to work about ten hours on an average."

"Ten hours?"

"Yes. It's a good deal, but they're trying to rush things."

"A good deal! Why, mister, ten hours a day won't be time enough to give me a chance to forget my troubles. I'm a terrible light sleeper. If I can't be kept busy 14 or 16 hours at the lowest calculation, I'll have to keep a look elsewhere."

"What was your previous occupation?"

"I'm a farmer. I own a piece of ground up yonder."

"Why don't you stick to it, then, instead of trying to get work on the railroad?"

"It's the old sad story," he replied, wiping his eye on the corner of a red handkerchief. "I'm going away on account of domestic trouble. I told the old lady day before yesterday that I reckoned it was time we had a few flapjacks for dinner. What d'ye think she said? She up an told me that if I wanted flapjacks there was the griddle an' there was the ingredients, an' I could help myself. She wasn't going to cook any more, owing to my havin' found fault with the last ones. I argued with her, an' she got mad an' riled me more'n I ever was riled before. So I went into the woods an' got an old muskrat an' told her that life with a woman that wouldn't mind her duty in a little thing like flapjacks wasn't worth livin' nohow, an' I reckoned I'd put my toe on the trigger an' stop the whole difficulty."

"What did she do then?"

"She grabbed the muskrat an' stood it in the corner. Her manner changed right off. She laughed an' told me not to be a fool, but to go ahead an' git the chores done. So I went out an' straightened everything up an' come back into the house, expectin', of course, the first thing I'd would be to smell flapjacks."

"Were you disappointed?"

"Completely. 'Waal,' she says, 'hev ye fed the pigs?'"

"I tol' her I had."

"An' milked the cows?"

"Yes," says I.

"An' washed off the buggy an' cleaned the horse an' put a new hinge on the chicken house?" she asks.

"I tol' her I'd done everything. Then, after thinkin' awhile, she remarked: 'Waal, I guess that's all. Here's the gun. Only for goodness' sake, go off a long ways from the house, where it won't make so much difference how ye mess things up.'—Washington Star.

Retributive Justice.

"Howdy do, Eben?" saluted the Squam Corner storekeeper, addressing Farmer Grayneck, who was driving slowly by.

"What kind of hens was them that you got from the chicken fancier in the city last week?"

"Macduffs," replied the honest agriculturist, halting his team and waiting in joyous anticipation for the chance to spring his little joke.

"H'm! That's a funny name. Why are they called Macduffs?"

"Because they—haw, haw!—always lay on."

And then the farmer's long suffering horses suddenly balked and ran wildly down the village street, overturning the wagon and throwing their master out on a mass of jagged rocks. His back was broken, and he died soon after in awful agony, amid the huzzas of all the bystanders.—New York Sunday Journal.

Analysis of Pleasure.

"D'ye mind that?" said Dolan as he gazed out of the window.

"It's a foine p'rade."

"An' all them min is in loine marchin' widout gain nohowers in particular. That's the peculiarity ax human nature. We don't lever think we're inj'in ourselves unless we're worrukin' loike blazes an' git'in nothin' done."—Washington Star.

APPRECIATES THE BOYS

that the Government cared very little or nothing for the militia. The President immediately interposed and said that he could not understand how such an idea could be prevalent and entertained by the militiamen.

One of the volunteer captains, in summing up the situation, said to the President: "The paramount grievance which the military men have to make is this: The population being small there is but limited material for the military organization. That material is now being drawn from largely by the Citizens' Guard, Sharpshooters and Mounted Reserve. While all these organizations are well organized, still, with the exception of the Mounted Reserve, no drills are held the year round. The military boys give up fifty-two evenings in a year for this purpose, besides turning out at all parades and battalion drills. Now if the Government believes that the militia is a good thing they should make some practical demonstration of the fact."

It was suggested to the President that the Government make it known to employees that they are wanted to join some one of the four organizations, the military preferred. The Sharpshooters and Mounted Reserve will regulate themselves, as to be eligible to membership in the first company one must be a good shot and in the second must own a horse. It being narrowed down to the military and Citizens' Guard the committee suggested that the Government restrict all Government employees under 40 years of age becoming allied with the Citizens' Guard.

President Dole seemed to be favorably impressed with this proposition. He gave the committee to thoroughly understand that the Government thought a great deal of the militia and that it would use every endeavor to foster its growth.

The kicking in the military is over for the time being at least. President Dole and the members of his Cabinet will certainly take up the matter and the results of their deliberations will be made known to the committee or military headquarters.

REGISTRATION MATTERS.

Office Open Night and Day to Accommodate Voters.

Now is the time to register, if you want to make sure of your vote next September. Delay may be fatal, for when the registration books are once closed, they will not be opened again for business until another two years roll around, and you cannot vote unless you have the proper qualifications, and are registered.

The Registration Board now has everything in good working order, and is prepared to do a land office business within the next few days, before moving over to the next district. The Board sits in the Legislative hall of the Judiciary Building from 9 a. m. to 12 m. and from 6 to 9 p. m. every day. It commenced its sittings on the 1st, and has three months in which to register the voters of the island, going from one district to another so as not to work a hardship on those who live at a distance.

Up to noon today only sixty-two voters had registered in this city. This is very slow work, and Chairman Henry Davis has issued a warning that some who are qualified to vote will surely lose the chance if they do not come to the front promptly. It is expected that the registration will not be nearly so heavy this year as last, on account of the numerous delinquent tax payers. One of the first requirements is that a man show his tax receipt for 1896. That is considered good evidence that he is a good citizen and loyal supporter of the Government. Without his tax receipt it is useless for a man to apply for registration.

Chairman Davis wishes special attention called to the fact that the Board is holding evening sessions, from 6 to 9 o'clock. There are many voters who cannot afford the time to visit the registration headquarters during daylight hours. Their votes are wanted and the Board is willing to hold evening sessions in order to give them a chance to register.

Two years ago R. J. Warren, a druggist at Pleasant Brook, N. Y., bought a small supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sums up the result as follows: "At that time the goods were unknown in this section; today Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a household word." It is the same in hundreds of communities. Where ever the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy become known the people will have nothing else. For sale by all druggists and dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., agents for H. I.

EWA PLANTATION.

First Quarter of Year Closes With Good Results.

Manager Lowrey, of Ewa plantation, says that the first quarter of the new year has closed with good results. The various fields of cane have prospered and the mill has caused little or no trouble. The mill is kept running night and day, about 113 tons of sugar is being turned out every twenty-four hours or a little over 750 tons a week. A single field of 135 acres of sugar cane at Ewa, recently yielded over eleven tons of sugar to the acre. Such a yield is unprecedented in these islands and probably elsewhere. The soil on Ewa plantation is exceptionally fertile, being decomposed volcanic ash and four large cinder cones in that district. A liberal use of fertilizers has also been made.

With the opening of 1,300 of new land, and the new wells and pumps, 30,000,000 gallons of water will daily be pumped upon the fields of this plantation. Editor S. E. Bishop, of the Friend, figures that this is much more than is distributed to the city of Chicago, and some of it lifted to a greater height.

Since the remarkable dividend of 33 1/3 per cent was declared on Ewa stock last year, the one hundred and ninety odd shareholders in that plantation are wondering how much will be declared this year. Already 5 per cent has been paid.
